So said a friend to us, yesterday, when speaking of a neighbor's children. No doubt she was right. No doubt Goldsmith's Maid in her palmiest days would have found it "hard" lines to keep up with the falsehoods of the children in question, but who was to blame? s to blame in the majority of cases of this kind? Who gives children their first lessons in deception? Who teaches them to lie, and then blames them for do-

Grown people. It may be their parents, their aunts, their grand-parents; it may be some out-sider, but, in nine cases out of ten, they are taught deception by some older than themselves—old enough to know better. Children, like monkeys, are creatures of imitation. They will do what they see others do. The little girl wants a trail, and her hair in a French twist, because ma or auntie has her's so. The little boy wants to smoke because Uncle

Charlie puffs his cigar. He thinks it will help make a man of him. Children have confidence in grown people, and do not once think that anything they do is not to be imitated with im punity. And it is a pity that their confidence is so much misplaced. In the days when we were young parents ruled their children. Now it is just the other way. Baby is the autocrat of the household, and by the time he is ten years old he bosses all hands and the

He has learned the ways of his parents and guardians pretty effectually. He knows just what it means when his mother says: "Johnnie, if you do that again I'll skin you alive!"

off if he does it a thousand times! It is doubtful, even, if he gets his ears slap ped. The worst that can happen will be the cutting off of the jam or jelly at supper time, and he knows just where the goodies are kept, and he can get his fill while cook is setting things to rights in the kitchen, and pa and ma are discussing the latest gossip in the parlor.

It is passing strange why parents so generally deceive children. People wise as Solomon, (in their own conceit, at least,) and bonest about lying as George Washington, do not scruple to tell their children that Santa Claus comes down the chimney, that castor oil and rheubarb, and jalap are so good! that old tramps will carry off bad boys, and that lads who go swimming Sundays always get drowned, and a thousand other things equally absurd and false.

The other day we heard a mother—she calls herself a Christian, and is very free to condemn other people's faults— we heard her say to her little four year old girl:

"Don't go near that well, Minnie, for if you do there is a great, big ugly, redheaded bogy who lives down there, and he will open his dreadful mouth and swallow you up alive."

And this little girl listened with dis tended eyes, and, after she had duly di-gested the information, she cried out: 'Oh, mamma, why don't his hairs get into the water and make red snakes?

tendency to deception is strong in every human breast. It is a miserable lesson, which children learn full too soon withont any tutorage. It comes natural to them, and it behooves parents and all others having intercourse with youthful minds, to be frank and honest with them. Children have a great deal of discernment, and though they are inclined to regard every man innocent until he is proved guilty, let them once prove you uilty and you can never make them believe in you again.
They are small detectives, and they note any expression of countenance in their elders, and form their own conclu-"Mr. Andrews is a bad man?" said one of our little friends a few days ago.

"Why so?" we asked.
"He tells lies! He told papa that he liked to have salt pork around his throat. That was when I had the sore throat, and

"Oh, I saw him wink to mamma. I guess I could tell!"

After a time, the consequences of deceiving children will be plainly seen. They will learn the habit and turn upon you with your own weapons. If they

"Papa does so-why may not I?" Oh parents, when will you learn to bo wise? When will you begin to teach your children to do right from principie, and not from the fear of punishment, or the hope of reward?

When will you teach them to be true by a living, breathing example of truth in yourselves, set constantly before them, and practiced so rigorously that even their sharp eyes may see no flaw therein.

OVERFEEDING YOUNG ANIMALS .-The great danger in feeding young animals is in everdoing it. A writer in the New York Times has of late made the discovery that young calves can very easily be kept from growing, and indeed, can be brought to lose weight by over feeding with warm skimmed milk, doubt less the very best food for a young calf under four months old. Overfeeding with the most nutritious and digestible food unduly taxes the digestive organs, and at once stops their action. It does more and worse; it loads the intestinal canal with undigested and irritating matter which inflames the mucous membrane causes disorder of the vital functions, and draws upon the system for matter with which to supply the waste? Not only is no growth made, but previous growth is drawn upon, and the young animal wastes its substance. The same effect occurs with full-grown animals fed for fattening when the injudicious feeder supposes that if four quarts of feed will make a pound weight of flesh and fat, eight quarts should make two pounds, and acting upon his supposition learns that the rules of arithmetic do not apply to the practice of feeding animals, and that addition and multiplication may a times become substraction. So that not only must food be chosen in reference to its nutritive qualities and its digestibili-ty, but the ration must be apportioned to the actual and healthful requirements of the animals .- American Farmer.

A HUSBAND'S CHRISTMAS PRESENT —A gentleman sauntered into a large dry goods store in the city of L—a few days before Christmas, and remarked casually to the attentive clerk: "I want something for a Christmas present for my wife What have you got?"

The clerk suggested various things, but the customer seemed not quite satis-

At last he asked, "Have you cotton

"Certainly, sir."
"I need some new shirts. How much

"I need some new shirts. How much cloth does it take for a shirt?"

"About four yards."

"Well, let's see. I want eight new shirts. Eight times four are thirty-two. I'll take thirty-two yards."

The gratitude of the wife at receiving as a Christmas present the cloth for eight new shirts for her husband can be better imagined than described.

imagined than described. -"Oh, you be darned," as the Christ-mas present said when it slipped through the hole in the heel of the hung-up stockGeorgia Hospitality.

As I got beyond Rossville, in riding out to the battle-field of Chicksmauga it began to rain, and the way the thunder roared and lightning flashed and the flood-gates opened was appalling. A farmer just over the Georgia line beckon-ed me in out of the wet, and there I stuck from I o'clock until dark. It steady storm, without a break for a minite, and as there were no signs of its clearing up before midnight the man said I had better stay all night. It looked that way to me, too, but it was a log house with only one room, and only two beds for the twelve of us. There were six children, some half-grown, the farmer and his wife, an old woman, a son-in-law a young woman and myself. It looked as if some of us would have to stand up to sleep, and along about 9 o'clock I be gan to get nervous. Perhaps the man noticed it, for soon after that hour he "Stranger, we'll step out and look at We went to the barn, and after a look at the horse returned and found all the women in one bed and the light out.

'Shake off and jump into Cother bed,' whispered the man," and I followed direc-tions. I was no sooner in than he followed. Then came the young man, then the old one, and the three boys lay across our feet, the upper one resting across my knees. It was impossible to move or turn, but in ten minutes all were snoring away as if that was their usual way of going to bed. I heard the old clock strike 11, 12, 1 and 2, and was finally dozing off when some one opened the door, walked in, and began to undress. The noise aroused the farmer, who care fully called out : "Who's that?"

"Me!" "Jim Baker."

"Oh, Jim, ch! Want to stay all night?" 'I reckou."

"Well, strip off and pile in between the fust two on the front—there's only four of us lying len'thwise !"

Jim piled in without another word being said and was soon asleep and as I was sliding silently out to finish the night on the floor, the farmer sleepily queried:
"That you, Tom? Pull off yer butes

PLOWING AN ACRE.-Farmers talk bout breaking up an acre of ground in a day, or laving off an acre for corn or cotton, without thinking how much walk ing it would require to accomplish this a four-inch bull-tongue is used for breaking land, the plow will cut about five inches to the furrow, allowing only a half inch for breaking on each side. Then 504 furrows will be required for an acre, and this will require the plowman to walk about twenty miles. At two miles an hour, ten hours would be required to break an acre. If a six or seven-inch turning plow is used, which would cut eight inches, then 315 furrows would be required for an acre, and this would re-quire twelve miles walking. A two-horse plow, cutting ten inches, would require ten miles walking. A large plow cutting twelve inches, would require 210 furrows and eight and one third miles walking to It is a sin and a shame to tell lies to the acre. In laying off cotton land three children, no matter who does it! The feet wide, seventy rows would be required feet wide, seventy rows would be required to the acre, and the plowman would walk two and three quarter miles. Seven acres would require nineteen and one-quarter miles. To lay off an acre of corn the rows four feet apart, the hand would walk two miles; so ten acres a day would require twenty miles walking. In these calculations a square acre is considered. It makes no difference what the shape of n acre may be, the distance to be wall ed will be the same. Now, the question for farmers to settle is how much land can an average hand plow in a day, or what is a fair day's work, with the plow? -Spartanburg Spartan.

A HISTORICAL GORGE.-Among the Capon mountains of Hampshire County, West Virginia, is a gorge called Hanging Rock, which possesses more than ordina-ry historical and romantic interest. A narrow road runs along the side of a brawling stream, and above it on either he wanted me to have some round my hand the wooded cliffs rise to a height of throat. Nasty, greasy stuff!"

"But how do you know that he did not tawba Indians who were encamped in the gap in 1731 were set upon by a party of hostile Delawares and totally extermina-ted. A few years later some prowling Frenchman and Indians fired from a ambush on Ensign Daniel Morgan, "the who was passing through the gap bearing dispatches to Winchester. Two soldiers who were with him fell from their horses see you deceive others, they will try the same course. In their childish minds they justify themselves by reference to streaming from a terrible bullet wound, clasped his mare about the neck with both arms, and was borne safely back to a neighboring fort, where he was lifted from the saddle insensible. In 1864 the gorge was the scene of a fierce cavalry fight between some roving troopers from the Federal and Confederate armies. Recently surveyors have located the route of the Baltimore, Cincinnati and Wes-

> WHAT A BOY WILL Do.-An exchange says a boy will tramp 247 miles in one day on a rabit hunt and be limber in the evening; when if you ask him to go across the street and borrow Jones' two-inch auger, he will be as stiff as a meat block. Of course he will. And he will go swimming all day and stay in the water three hours at a time, and splash and dive and paddle and puff, and next morning he will feel that an unmeasured insult has been offered him when he is told by his mother to wash his face carefully so as not to leave the score of the ebb and flow so plain to be seen under his gills. And he'll wander around a dry creek bed all the afternoon piling up a pebble fort, and nearly die when his big sister wants him to please pick up a basket of chips for the parlor stove. And he'll spend the biggest part of the day trying to corner a stray mule or a bald backed horse for a ride, and feel that all life's charms have fled when he comes to drive the cows home. And he'll turn a ten-acre lot upside down for ten inches of angle-worms, and wish for a voiceless tomb when the garden demands his attention. But all the same when you want a friend who will stand by you and be true to you in all kinds of weather, enlist one of those same boys.—Hawkeye.

> A SLY TRAP.—Mr. White, of New-castle, N. II., has a brood of chickens which have the run of a portion of the yard, the old hen being kept shut up. The chickens are fed with moistened meal in source and when the description in saucers, and when the dough gets a little sour it attracts large numbers of flies. An observant toad has evidently noticed this, and every day along toward noticed this, and every day along toward evening he makes his appearance in the yard, hops to a saucer, climbs in and rolls over and over until he is covered with meal, having done which he awaits developments. The flies, enticed by the smell, soon swarm around the scheming batrachian, and whenever one passes within two inches or so of his nose his tongue darts out and the fly disappears, and this plan works so well that the toad has taken it up is a regular business. The ken it up is a regular business. The chickens do not manifest the least alarm at their clumsy and big-mouthed play-mate, but seem to consider it quite a lark.

MOTHER'S FRIEND!

One of the greatest comforts to those expecting to be confined is a remedy upon which implicit con-Adence can be placed-one that will produce a safe and quick delivery-one that will control pain and shorten the duration of labor. Such is "THE MOTEma's FRIEND." Tryltand see what

A Blessing it is to Suffering Females. A Blessing it is to building romaines.

This Liniment when used two or three weeks before confinement, produces a wonderful effect, causing a very easy and quick labor, with comparatively little pain, and leaves the mother in a condition to recover quickly -or in other words to have a good getting up. Under its use, labor will ordinarily occupy much less than the usual time, and the suffering be diminished beyond expression.

The condition for which this remedy is offered is of such a character as to forbid a long array of certificates. Those interested in its use are respectfully referred to the hundreds who have used it. READ THE TESTIMONIALS:

I most carnestly entreat every female expecting to be confined to use the "THE MOTHER'S FRIEND." Coupled with this entreaty, I will add that during a large obstetrical practice (forty-four years), I have never known it to fail to produce a coupled daily and the daily and the second FRIEND.
that during a large obsteament it to fail to person, I have never known it to fail to person safe and quick delivery.

proved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine. This Machine has been styled the "Southern Favorite"—and justly should it be—for it is the lightest running, most noiseless, most durable and easiest Machine to manage now in use. It uses the straight self-adjusting needle, and the work passes straight from the operator. It does away with thomoisy shuttle, but uses a bobbin that helds one hundred yards of thread on the underside, thereby saving a great annovance in stopping so often to fill the shuttle. It sews from the lightest to the very heaviest fabric without change of tention. It will do all the work that any other Machine will do, and a great deal that no other can do. Each Machine warranted for five years, and farnished with all the latest attachments.

Farties in want of a first-class Machine Agentleman writes: "My wife used your Mornnew Fraisn a ther fourth confinement, and her
